Mad and Matter. In Mr. Warburton's work on Egypt, he tells of his experience with a famous magician of that country. He, being sent for, came to Mr. Warburton's hotel to give him an exhibition of his skill.

This boy died for ten minutes without any effect. The magician called another boy and repeated the same thing. This boy, being susceptible to the influence, was soon in a semi-mesmeric condition, the object of the mysterious mark on the palm of the boy's hand being the means of putting the boy in a passive condition.

Here he is! I see an old man, with spectacles, lying on a couch, having on a long black robe. Mr. Warburton next called for the late Lord Nelson. The boy said: "Here he is, I see a soldier with one arm." After calling for several others, the boy minutely described them, to the astonishment of Mr. Warburton and his friends.

The Republicans will meet at Guildhall, Tuesday, June 24. The Republican voters in Essex County are hereby notified to meet in convention by ballot, Tuesday, June 24, at 10 o'clock a. m., to nominate candidates for Senator, Assistant Judge, Judge of Probate, State's Attorney, Sheriff, High Bailiff, and County Commissioner, to be supported at the next September election; also to elect a County Committee, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The delegates to be chosen at primary meetings, called by the Republicans, County Committee, will be the County Secretary of the primary meetings will report to the Convention the election of Town Committees. In accordance with the general custom the County Committee will be the Committee of Credentials. Delegates will provide themselves with proper credentials, signed by the Secretary of the County, and will present the same to the Committee, who will convene in the Grand Jury room at 9 o'clock on the morning of the Convention.

By vote of the last Convention the basis of representation will be "one delegate for each town, and one additional delegate for each city Republican votes cast in favor of Senator, or fractional part thereof, exceeding .25. The apportionment is as follows: Bloomfield 2, Concord 2, Lemington 2, Brighton 2, East Haven 2, Lunenburg 2, Danversville 2, Grandby 2, Malabar 2, Canaan 2, Guildhall 2, Victory 2.

The Result. Our Standard Bearer for the coming two years are given above. Neither time nor space at our disposal this week to do other than give the result of the State Convention at Montpelier last Wednesday. The ticket put in nomination will, we think give very general satisfaction, and command the hearty support of the Republicans of Vermont. The nominees are all men of ability and integrity, and in their hands the administration of the State government will be marked by efficiency, dignity and honor.

The platform is one on which all can join hands. The address by Congressman W. P. Hepburn, from Iowa, was an abounding masterful one, and aroused those present to great enthusiasm.

Flood Morning, Essex County. Yes, it is Woodbury and Mansur as the HERALD predicted it would be. Prof. Porter H. Dale presented the name of Col. Mansur to the convention in a very eloquent and able speech which commanded the closest attention of the delegates and evoked enthusiastic applause.

Col. Mansur's majority is therefore 96. We would also add that Essex County was the only county of the state in the convention with a full delegation.

General Groat Renominated. The convention, representing the second congressional district of Vermont, have done well in nominating by acclamation Gen. Groat to succeed himself. All have confidence in his integrity and ability. His record as a citizen, soldier, and as a public man is a clear and clean one, and not a word adverse to his character or ability has come from any quarter. He is a positive, capable man, one who can do decisive acts, and a man who is thoroughly schooled in all the theories and present details and working of the whole machinery of our government.

How much Commissioner Lochren of the pension bureau is justified in pluming himself over his alleged saving of $25,000,000 depends upon the means by which that saving has been effected. If it has been accomplished by the arbitrary stoppage of pension payments, under the order which compelled pensioners to come forward and prove their claims anew, he is entitled to no credit for it, but on the contrary merits condemnation. The country doesn't want the veterans of the rebellion treated in a niggardly manner. It does not approve of a resort to all sorts of technicalities to reduce the pension payments. So far as the commissioner has effected his savings by the introduction of more economical methods of administration or by cutting off pensions clearly not deserved he is clearly entitled to praise.

But we suspect from the attitude of the interior department toward the pensioners that most of the saving has been effected by a resort to technicalities that has worked injustice to many deserving men.

The National Republican League convention to be held in Denver promises to be one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings of Republicans ever held in this country outside of a national nominating convention. The young Republicans of the nation are anxious to be organized for the coming contests which must settle to a greater or less extent the national standing.

Thetford Asbestos Mines.

Written for the HERALD. Mr. Editor: It may not be amiss to give a short account to your readers of the asbestos mines here at Thetford and the manner of operating them. The mines are situated in Thetford, Megantic County, P. Q., a town of some 3000 inhabitants, consisting chiefly of the men employed in working the mines, and the usual class of business men, merchants, professional men, etc. Thetford is a French town, only a small portion of its inhabitants speaking the English language. The town has grown up and developed within the past thirteen years. The richest, best equipped and most extensively worked mine is the "Belle," owned by English capitalists, chief of whom is Mr. Bell of London, Eng. There are three mines side by side, through which the Quebec Central R. R. runs, the working positions being on a knoll east of the railway. To the north, and east of the track is the "King" mine, owned by King Brothers the lumber merchants; south of this is the "Bell," and next to the latter is the "Johnson" owned by the Johnson Brothers. To the west of the track is the "Ward" mine owned by Ward Bros. & Co., and the "Beaver" owned by Messrs. Lucke & Mitchell and a New York man. There is one other mine in the group but it is not worked at present. This group is without doubt the richest asbestos bearing serpentine rock yet discovered. The three east of the railroad track, namely the King, Bell and Johnson are the best, alike as to the quantity and quality of the fibre. There is no underground work in mining here; they simply start on the surface. A circular pit, say about 50 feet in diameter is sunk, and this is enlarged as they proceed, care being taken to keep the sides of the pit as nearly perpendicular as possible, consistent with safety, so as to afford the workmen room at the bottom in which to carry on the work. Some of the pits are 150 feet deep. On the edge of the pit is placed a derrick, and there are two boxes belonging to each derrick. These derricks are constantly hauling up the loaded boxes or dropping down the empty ones. The power used on the larger mines is compressed air; the drills and hoists and other machinery are run by this air, it having the advantage over steam in that it can be transmitted great distances with only the slight loss caused by friction. Tracks are laid from each pit to convey the waste rock to the dump, and the asbestos to the sheds to be cobbled and fitted for the market. At Black Lake, six miles south of Thetford, there are six or seven mines, only three of which are being worked, and two of these were recently started. The hard times affect this industry the same as all others.

I have occasion to go to Black Lake frequently on business, and I am often forced to laugh at a curious occurrence that happened on one trip. I had frequently noticed on these journeys a black and white bull calf; about an equal amount of black and white distributed all over him in curious blotches. It was a lonely, homely, and degenerate looking animal, with a very long tail. I never could make out how such a poor calf of a calf could develop such a darning extravagant tail, but it did. It might be because the calf was so full of grit; or else it might have had the misfortune to get before a mirror, and the shock of seeing its own mottled "piz" must have sent all the sap and energy to the end farthest from the looking glass. This seems to me the most reasonable way to account for such weary prolongation. But to proceed. On the trip referred to this poor calf was in trouble; a white goose or gander (I don't know which) was wallowing that calf, making it emit long dismal yells. I think that bird must have been a goose because it was so wicked. A calf is not a melodious animal; it has only a couple of flat notes, but the way it was leaning on those notes was a caution. It stood its ground bravely for a time, but at last it seemingly came to the conclusion that discretion was the better part of valor; that it was better to save half his hide than to have no hide at all, on the principle that half a loaf is better than no bread. But the goose; oh! wasn't that goose a warbler! Between the goose and calf they sent my recollection back to a certain ball—not one hundred miles from Island Pond—where a brass band was taking its first music lesson. The calf lost the battle and made for the barn, and as it passed through the gate it was the most demoralized looking animal I ever saw. Well, I couldn't help moralizing a little after the excitement was over. I am prone to make comparisons, and I came to the conclusion that the aforesaid dolly varden calf was not the only unfortunate. On a higher plane of existence there is a kind of white goose that can knock seventeen kinds of lamentation out of a kind of calf who has got high enough in the scale to wear white collars and tight boots, and can send him off defeated, and with a whimper that the loveliest stars are mere murky blotches in the sky, and that the last rose of summer is dead forever.

MATTHEW SHERIDAN, Thetford Mines, Que., June 18, 1894.

THIRTEEN YEARS EXPERIENCE. Miller's Fall's Mass.—"At different times during the last thirteen years," said Mr. W. A. Johnson of this place, "my wife has been sick from lung trouble, kidney and liver complaint, ulceration of the stomach and spring debility. At each time she has taken Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and it cured her. It is a family medicine with us and many of our neighbors."

Additional Local News. One young lady of the cooking school, evidently infatuated with the subject and with future anticipations, is having a practical experience this week with Coal and Dough.

In the game of base ball at Berlin Tuesday between the Berlin and Lancaster teams the game was won by the Berlin by a score of 19 to 2. Quite the reverse of the victors experience in Island Pond.

Oscar Davis and Mrs. Jacob Stern while standing in the store of Jacob Stern during the thunder storm last Tuesday received a slight shock, evidently part of the bolt that struck the Blanchette building.

During the storm Tuesday night, the planking under the store of Albert M. Stevens gave way, opening a large gap down which the torrent flowed, flooding the cellar and damaging considerable stock.

Now that the gardens are all planted and the broods for the thanksgiving repast are chirping merrily, owners of dogs and other household pets by exercising a little care and discretion will prevent a great deal of annoyance, trouble, and expense.

Base ball enthusiasm has evidently taken full possession of the fair ones of our town as well as their sterner brothers as was fully demonstrated by their attendance at the game last Friday. Their hearty applause and the natty bows of gray and black tastily displayed in button holes, on hats and parasols evidently put the boys on their metal.

Returning to the Lodge Hall it is hoped we can listen to some appropriate remarks by a brother. All members of sister Lodges who may be in town are earnestly invited to join in paying tribute to the memory of the dead, and brothers are urged to supply floral designs for decoration purposes.

PER ORDER OF COMMITTEE. The performance given by the Berlin Minstrel last Friday evening was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. There was a pleasing musical programme, interspersed with funny sayings, with occasionally an atrocious pun perpetrated, and the specialties were all good. The closing act brought out roar after roar of laughter and of applause. The Berlin Minstrel rank very high in amateur minstrelsy; we have never seen their equal, and we are not surprised that full houses greet them wherever they go for they certainly give an excellent entertainment. Come again boys; whether we get beat at base ball or not we will not lay it up against the Berlin Minstrel.

Housman's Army.

In the "Annals of Staten Island" an instance is related of extraordinary self-possession and prompt decision on the part of a young man named Housman. The residents of the island, during its occupancy by the British in revolutionary times, were prohibited from keeping firearms of any description in their houses. A few of them, nevertheless, had succeeded in concealing guns, and among these was young Housman.

One morning after the fall of a light snow, the young man was out with his gun in quest of rabbits, when a sudden turn in the path brought him in sight of two soldiers who were probably out, like himself, after game.

The two parties saw each other simultaneously, and each stopped. Housman thought of the loss of his gun, and possibly of his life; but the sense of danger was but a stimulus to his coolness and daring. He suddenly turned his back on the soldiers, and stepping around the turn, waved his hand as if beckoning to some one.

"Hurry up!" he shouted. "Here are two Britishers. Three of you go round to the right, three to the left, and the rest follow me. Hurry up, before they run away!"

The Britishers, hearing these words, and fearing there might be a small army about to surround them, turned and fled. They even threw down their arms to facilitate their flight.

What report they made when they reached their quarters is not known, but a detachment was at once sent out to capture the young man and his army. Their surprise and mortification may be imagined when at the turn in the path they could find but the tracks of a single individual.

ONLY ONE VERDICT.

REV. DR. TALMAGE GIVES WARNING TO THE IMPENITENT.

There is no reversal of Judgment—No That is Unjust Will Be Unjust Still. Thoughts Concerning a Final Separation—Consequences of Sin.

BROOKLYN, June 17.—Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is now on his round of the world journey, has selected as the subject for his sermon through the press today "Another Chance," the text being taken from Ecclesiastes xii, 14: "All that is done shall be brought into judgment." There is no reversal of Judgment in the midst of a vast multitude that there will be an opportunity in the next world to correct the mistakes of this; that if we do make a complete shipwreck of our earthly life it will be a disaster which we may walk to a palace; that, as a defendant may lose his case in the circuit court and carry it up to the supreme court or court of chancery and get a reversal of judgment in his behalf, all the costs being over on the defendant; so, if we fail in our earthly trial we may in the higher jurisdiction of eternity have the judgment of the lower court set aside, all the costs remitted, and we may be victorious defendants forever. My object in this sermon is to show that common sense as well as my text declares that such an expectation is chimerical. You say that the impenitent man, being got into the next world and seeing the disaster, will, as a result of that disaster, turn, the pain the cause of his reformation. But you can find 10,000 instances in the world of men who have done wrong, and a disaster struck them suddenly. Did the disaster heal them? No. They went right on.

The Curse of Disease. That man was stung of disquisitions. "You must stop drinking," said the doctor, "and quit the fall life you are leading, such an expectation from the patient suffers paroxysm after paroxysm, but under skillful medical treatment he begins to sit up, begins to walk about the room, begins to go to business. And lo, he goes back to the same grogshops for his morning drink, and his evening dram, and the drama between the doctor and the patient. Some physical ailments. Some medical warning. Now the illness is more protracted, the liver is more stubborn, the stomach more irritable, and the digestive organs are more rebellious. But for awhile he is out again, goes back to the same dram and goes the same round of sacrifices against his physical health.

He sees that his downward course is ruining his household; that his life is a perpetual perjury against his marriage vow; that that broken hearted woman is no longer the hopeful young wife who he married; that her old schoolmates do not recognize her; that his sons are to be taunted for a lifetime by the father's drunkenness; that the daughters are to pass into life under the sacrifice of a disreputable ancestor. He is drinking up their happiness, the peace of his home, and perhaps for the life to come. Some times an appreciation of what he is doing comes upon him. His nervous system is all a tangle. From crown of head to sole of foot he is one aching, rasping, crucifying, damning torture. Where is he? In hell or in heaven? He wonders. He will enter the heavenly temple only a little later than those who behaved themselves here. I will on my way to heaven take a little wider excursion than those who leave us via gehenna and hell. Another chance in the next world means free license and wild abandonment in this.

Suppose you were a party in an important case at law, and you knew from consultation with judges and attorneys that you would be tried twice, and the first trial would be the last. You would be the second world, decide everything which trial would you make the most preparation for, for which you retain the ablest attorneys, for which you are most anxious about the attendance of witnesses? You would put the first trial on the second trial, all the anxiety, all the preparation, all the first is nothing, the last is everything. Give us the rare assurance of a second and more important trial in the subsequent life, and all the preparation for eternity would be "post mortem," post funeral, post sepulchral, and the world with one jerk be pitched off into limbo and godlessness.

Only One Invitation. Furthermore, let me ask you a chance should be given in the next world if we have refused innumerable chances in this? Suppose you give a banquet, and you invite a number of friends, but one man declines to come, and you invite him with indifference. You in the course of 20 years give 20 banquets, and the same man is invited to them all and treats them all in the same obnoxious way. After awhile you remove to another house, and you again invite your friends, but the one who declined or neglected the first invitation, are you to blame? Has he a right to expect to be invited after all the indignities he has done you? God in this world has invited us all to the banquet of grace. He invited us by his providence and his spirit every year since we knew our right hand from our left. If we declined it every time or treated the invitation with indifference, and gave 20 or 30 or 40 years of indignity on our part toward the banquet, and at last we were invited to the banquet in a more luxurious and kind way, have we a right to expect to be invited again, and have we a right to blame him if he does not invite us?

If 12 gates of salvation stood open 20 years or 30 years for our admission, and at the end of that time they are closed, and we are invited to enter, and our gates ought to be open again. Give us another chance? If the steamer is to sail for Hamburg, and we want to get to Germany by that line, and we read in every evening and every morning newspaper that the steamer will sail on a certain day, for two weeks we call on the agent, and we see the steamer, and then we go down to the docks 15 minutes after it has shoved off into the stream and say: "Come back. Give me another chance. It is not fair to treat me in this way. Swing up to the dock again, and throw out planks, and let me come on board." Such a behavior would invite arrest as a madman.

The Necessary Surrender. And if after the gospel ship has lain at anchor before our eyes for years and years, and all the benign voices of earth and heaven have urged us to get on board, and after awhile she sails without us, is it common sense to expect her to come back? You might as well go out on the highlands and Navasink and call to the Majestic after she has been three days out and expect her to return as to call back an opportunity for heaven offered us every year, and for a lifetime we refuse to take it, and then rush on the bosom of Jehovah's boomer demanding another chance. There ought to be, there can be, there will be no such thing as posthumous opportunity. The man who declines to accept of the text, "If the tree fall toward the south, toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth there it shall be."

You see that this idea lifts this world up from an unimportant way station to a station of eternal consequences and makes all eternity wait for the man who declines to accept of the text, "If the tree fall toward the south, toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth there it shall be."

Wrecks and Rights. "But," says some one, "in the future state evil surroundings will be withdrawn and elevated influences substituted, and hence expurgation and purification and glorification." But the righteous, all their sins forgiven, have passed on into a better state, and consequently the unrepentant will be left alone. It cannot be expected that Dr. D. will be exhausted himself in teaching Hindoo, Deity, and the way to heaven, and Dr. A. will, who gave his life in the evangelization of China, and a demon of Jordan, who tolled for the redemption of Jotham, should be sent down by some celestial missionary society to educate those who wasted all their earthly existence in godless and atheistic efforts. And, the entire kingdom of the morally bankrupt infidels to come from? Can one speckled and bad apple in a barrel of diseased apples turn the other apples good? Can those who have spent their lives in godless and atheistic efforts, and who have failed in the business of the soul pay the debts of their insolvents? Can a million wrongs make one right?

Panopolis was a city where King Philip of Thrace put all his bad parties to his kingdom. If any man had despised a pitiful man about Panopolis, I do not think the parents from other cities would have sent their children there. Instead of amendment in their other world, all the associations, now that the goal is evaded, will be generating and multiplying. You would not want to see the man to a cholera or yellow fever hospital for his health, and the great lazaretto of the next world, containing the diseased and plague struck, will be a poor place for moral recovery. If the surroundings in this world were crowded with temptation, the surroundings of the next world, where the temptations have passed up and on, will be 1,000 per cent more crowded of temptation. The Count of Chateaubriand made his little son sleep at night at the top of a castle turret, where the winds howled and where the waves were said to haunt the place, and within the moonlight he was most died with fright the son tells us that the process gave him nerves that could not tremble and a courage that never faltered. But I don't think that towers of darkness and the spectral world swept by aurore and twilight will ever fit one for the land of eternal punishment. The curriculum of that college of infernal, where, after proper preparation by the sins of this life, the candidate enters, passing on from freshman class of depravity to sophomore of abandonment, and from sophomore to junior, and from junior to senior, and from senior to the land of eternal punishment. The diploma signed by Satan, the president, and other professional demoneas, attesting that the candidate has been long enough under their drill, he passes up to enter heaven? Pandemonium—a preparatory course for heavenly admission! Ah, my friends, at his college he has fitted uncounted multitudes for Hell, but never fitted one soul for happiness.

What Another Chance Means. Furthermore, it would not be safe for this world if men had another chance in the next. If it had been announced that, however a man might live in this world, he could in the next world, he would have been a next, society would be terrified, demoralized and the human race demoralized in a few years. The fear that if we are bad and unforgiven here it will not be well for us in the next existence is the chief influence that keeps civilization from rushing back to semi-barbarism, and from rushing into midnight savagery, and into night savagery from extinction. For it is the astringent impression of all nations—Christian and heathen—that there is no future chance for those who have wasted this.

Multitudes of men who are kept within bounds would say, "Go to hell, but use get all out of this life there is in it. Use get glory and inebriation and uncleanliness and revenge, and all sensualities, and wait upon me. My life may be somewhat short, but I will enjoy it to the full. I will not be disappointed by disappointments, but I will only make heavenly indifference on a large scale." He would not enter the heavenly temple only a little later than those who behaved themselves here. I will on my way to heaven take a little wider excursion than those who leave us via gehenna and hell. Another chance in the next world means free license and wild abandonment in this.

life here. No other chance! Oh, how that augments the value and the importance of this chance!

Alexander with his army, used to surround a city, and then would lift a great light in token to the people that if they surrendered before that light went out they would be well. But if once the light went out then the writing was on the wall, and against the wall, and demolition and disaster would follow. Well, all we need do for our present and everlasting safety is to make surrender to Christ, the King and conqueror—surrender of our hearts, surrender of our lives, surrender of everything.
